SHIP GOES ON ROCKS, DOOMED

North Star, Bound for Yarmouth, Wrecked Near That Port; 280 Pasengers Saved

While the Boston-Yarmouth steamship North Star lay broadside on the rocks of Green Island, nine miles south of Yarmouth, N. S., today, pounded by the waves and leaking badly, 280 passengers were rescued by the crews of two Canadian towboats.

All the passengers were landed safely at Yarmouth shortly before noon, according to information received at the navy yard.

General Manager Sides of the Eastern Steamship Company stated that the passengers are practically out of danger, and that the members of the crew are safe. Dispatches, indicated, however, that it would be impossible to save the ship, which grounded early today.

The Canadian government steamship Stanley is standing by the doomed coast liner, as are two privately owned merchant ships not named. Towboats and barges are being sent from Yarmouth, and preparations are under way to care for women and children who may be suffering from exposure.

Some of these towboats are having difficulty in finding the stricken ship.

Tons of Fish Held in Storage Beyond Legal Time Limit

Hundreds of complaints of profiteering in various lines of business, many lines remote from each other, are being received at the office of the Department of Justice, No. 45 Milk street.

Thanks to complete co-operation between the Republican and Democratic leaders, there was a quorum of both houses present. The House leaders had kept the telegraph and long-distance telephone wires busy all night, with the result that when the House met at noon a quorum was in attendance, and it was found possible to secure favorable action on the joint resolution authorizing the session. All afternoon members arrived on various trains, with the result that before the time for the joint session fully two-thirds of the House membership was in Washington.

Republican and Democratic congressional leaders promised speedy action on all the President's legislative suggestions of a concrete nature.

CITY TAX RATE JUMPS $3 PER THOUSAND

May Even Go Forty Cents Higher, Mayor Peters Announces

Before leaving Boston for North Haven, Me., where he will spend a vacation of two more weeks, Mayor Peters today announced that there would be an increase of $3 in the tax rate. It is now $21.20 and may go to $24.40. When Peters assumed office the date was $17.70. The Mayor talked on the coming tax rate to the City Hall reporters following a conference he had with City Auditor Mitchell and Budget Commissioner Carven.

Asked for his opinion as to what the exact figure of the tax rate would be, Mayor Peters said he couldn't say definitely, but that it would be close to $25. He says this increase is due to the old city deficit of $4,000,000, which makes it imperative to add $2 to the tax levy. He said further that the Legislature last year passed an exact dealing appropriations for public schools and this will also add to the tax rate.

"I had hoped to keep the tax rate lower," said Mayor Peters. "The city got $300,000 from licenses issued to liquor dealers, who wanted to sell near beer. Were it not for this fact the tax rate would be a little higher."

GIRL WHO KILLED DOCTOR PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN SPECIAL COURT

SHOT TO AVENGE RUIN

Doctor Refused to Wed Her, Declares Jennie Zimmerman

Springfield, Aug. 8.—Judge Heady today held a special session of the police court in the women's detention room, near the cells, for the arraignment of Miss Jennie Zimmerman, charged with the murder of Dr. Henry Zimmerman by shooting. The proceedings took only a few minutes. Attorney William G. McKechnie, whom the accused had selected as counsel appeared for her.

Although she showed plainly the effects of the terrific strain she is under, the defendant pleaded "Not guilty" in a fairly firm voice. She was then ordered held without bail to September 4.

Attorney McKechnie declined to make any statement, but it is known that the defense will be interposed insanity.

Miss Zimmerman, who shot and killed Dr. Zimmerman in Ferry street yesterday afternoon, at the conclusion of a short, but excited interview, said that she had been engaged to the physician for two years, and that the relationship continued until March, when suddenly he became cool towards her, and declared he would have nothing more to do with her.

IGNORED HER PLEAS.

At that time Dr. Zimmerman was in the service as a lieutenant in the Medical Corps, and was stationed in Virginia camps. He declined to visit her, she said, and on the infrequent occasions when she succeeded in meeting him declined to be seen alone with her, despite her assertions that she was in a delicate condition for which he was responsible.

As a matter of fact, Miss Zimmerman told Dr. Zimmerman had performed an illegal operation upon her a year ago, and at that time agreed to do the responsible for their relations. He repeatedly declared he would marry her as soon as he was discharged and then repudiated his agreement.

She possessed letters to show that the physician promised to marry her, she said, and would produce them when the proper time arrives.

Following Dr. Zimmerman's return to the city Monday, she said, she tried to see him, but failed. She then called him by telephone, she said, but he was violently abusive, declared he would have nothing to do with her and would take steps to prevent her from pestering him. Finally, she said, of him if he intended to marry her, she said, and he stated emphatically that he was not going to marry her.

It was then, she declared, that she bought the revolver and a supply of cartridges, and determined, she said, to bring about his promise to marry her, or to take his life.

She did not see him until yesterday, shortly after another unsatisfactory telephone conversation with him over the phone. She had located him in the office of Dr. J. L. Shoveldin, she said, and asked him to meet her. He refused, she said, declaring that he never wanted to see her again, and would take steps to see that she did not bother him further.

A short time later, she said, she saw him drive by her in North street in an automobile with two young women, whom, she said, she has since been informed, he was engaged to marry. The car turned into Ferry street and stopped, and Dr. Zimmerman stepped to the sidewalk. Rushing to him, Miss Zimmerman grasped his arm and cried:

"You cannot go with them, Harry, you must go with me!"

GIVES HIM FINAL CHANCE.

He threw her arm off, she said, and declared he was determined to have nothing further to do with her. She pleaded to reconsider him, but he would not listen, he said, and then she called attention to her condition and asked him if he was sure that he was responsible. Failing to get a satisfactory reply she said, she faced him and asked:

"For the last time," she demanded, "are you going to do anything for me?"

The physician turned with an oath, she said, and declared:

"No, I won't, and you can go as far as you like." He turned away, and she shot him, she said, as he turned. She fired four more shots, she said, three of the five taking effect. She then turned the weapon and tried to run, but was caught by witnesses, who held her until the police arrived.

Dr. Zimmerman died at Wesson's the first shot hit him, and died in the ambulance on the way to Mercy Hospital. He never regained consciousness.

Miss Jennie Zimmerman, who killed Dr. Henry Zimmerman because, she claims, he betrayed her.

CONFESSES SHOOTING OF SPRINGFIELD DOCTOR

PULMOTOR, OUT OF ORDER, COSTS LIFE OF GIRL

Oxygen Bag of Apparatus Rotten, Fails to Save Lynn Gas Victim

Because the Lynn police pulmotor was decayed and useless, efforts to save the life of twenty-three-year-old Alice Halloran failed today, and the girl died of gas poisoning.

Physicians state that if the police had the proper emergency equipment Miss Halloran's life could have been saved.

Miss Halloran was a housemaid in the home of Mrs. Charles Boynton on Ocean avenue, Nahant, and was found unconscious in bed with gas escaping from a jet.

Dr. Marion Cowen Barrows was summoned and an emergency call for a pulmotor was sent in to the police. The oxygen bag of the pulmotor was rotten, and, notwithstanding the use of artificial respiration, the girl died. Testing apparatus failed to function properly when an attempt was made to use the pulmotor, but before this could be done life had passed from the body of the girl.

Miss Halloran came to Lynn from Nova Scotia.

EPIDEMIC OF BREAKS LAID TO BOY THIEVES

The Arlington police are inclined to believe that the two breaks and two attempted burglaries in stores at Arlington Heights were the work of boys. Not much of value was taken in any of the cases except here. At the drug store of T. H. Emus at Lowell and Massachusetts avenue, a small cash register was opened and a few dollars taken, while a large cash register was not touched. On the opposite corner the Palace of Sweets was entered and $15 was stolen from the cash register, nothing else being touched.

The residence of William S. Stackpole, No. 11 Edgemoor Park, Arlington, was broken into by a thief who evidently was hungry, for he opened up the ice chest of its food contents before he left.

MYSTERY OF COL. HOUSE PARTLY REVEALED

Senators Anxious to Quiz Wilson's Closest Friend After Lansing Tip

Washington, Aug. 8.—In the great mystery of Col. Edward M. House's visit to Switzerland, which has been investigated by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary Lansing caused his lack of knowledge on many features of the negotiations by stating that he had not participated actively enough in the conversations other than those with Wilson to have knowledge of some, the Secretary said, wanted Col. House. Mr. Lansing suggested that the committee summon Colonel House on his returning to the United States.

No development of the hearing brought more satisfaction to the Republican members of the committee than this suggestion by Mr. Lansing.

Immediately grabbed up.

For days at once appreciated the large political possibilities it presented. Ever since President Wilson left for France, the Republican leaders have been exceedingly anxious to learn the facts of his relations with Colonel House. No opportunity for ascertaining them authoritatively has yet presented itself. But now the opportunity seems at hand. Republican senators can avail themselves of Secretary Lansing's statement by asking that they do not have to take the initiative. They simply can act upon the suggestion of the Secretary of State himself.

There are signs of a hot on it, and certainly will do so if Colonel House shall return to the United States before the treaty of peace with Germany has been ratified by the senate.

MAY STAY IN EUROPE.

But it will interest some of the Republican senators no eager to have Colonel House on hand. Some of them have been under the impression that there is a very strong probability of their being compelled to remain in Europe for the present, in connection with the United States' part in the League of Nations. It is believed that he would have to attend the council of the League of Nations, which is expected to be established by the members. Now that it is certain that the United States will not be a member of the League for years, the meeting back will no longer be necessary.

It is believed that President Wilson, knowing these will be unfortunate, has already arranged with Colonel House to remain in Europe to act as the President's representative on the League of Nations council, which will be in session during the time the President is returning to the United States and the League of Nations council is in session.

In this way the understanding was more generally prevalent that Colonel House will remain in Europe. He frequently made the statement that he had no desire to return to the United States. House of Commons and in the French Chamber of Deputies where he had been received with the greatest enthusiasm. It is believed that these speeches will be made by the diplomatists of Europe and that Colonel House will be pleased to be relieved.

INTERESTED IN PROBLEMS.

He is greatly interested in the problems of reconstruction. It thinks that the people of intelligent appreciation of them and can be helpful in their solution. From the standpoint of politics, Colonel House's presence in Europe is what he might accomplish if he returned to the United States. He is not a candidate for office, will be toward completing in Europe.

Colonel House's presence in Europe is considered peculiarly timely by the opinion of President Wilson's decision to attend the Victory loan meeting in Belmont Hall. It was noticed by the correspondents in Paris that the President's address took a place in the president's program. There were reports then that Colonel House had left Paris for Switzerland for the purpose of getting the President's views on many of the trying questions of the peace conference. Those reports proved to be false, but in truth because it is a fact that the relations between Colonel House and Mr. Wilson are of the most friendly, and are so still.

When Mr. Lansing came back to Washington it was remarked that he was called into frequent consultations with the President.

It is to be noted in connection with the change in the President's attitude toward the league treaty that it was called that when the President returned his attitude was quite different from that which he took on his second departure for Europe.

CHALLENGED SENATE.

On the eve of his departure he had challenged the Senate on his action with the peace treaty. He had manifested a spirit of conciliation in his address to the Senate he said he would be glad to be called on for any information he could give which would help the Senate in its deliberations on the treaty and later consent for individual senators to express his views to them personally and endeavored to gain their consent although not directly asking for it.

How much of the feeling of opposition to the treaty President Wilson may have overcome by his conciliatory attitude remains to be shown. But there is no question that the feeling of personal hostility which had been engendered on Capitol Hill by his former attitude has much been ameliorated.

Say—let us be pals again!"

—Boston Boating.

Dining Boston and her ultra-respectable children have decided to let that bad little Elevated Boy play in their yard again.

All the brave families—especially Miss Antonia Boston and Master Suburban Boston are tickled to death to get back into their daily games, particularly the grand old game of How the Blazes to Get to Work.

They all were elevated with plenty of room, nicely shiny floors. No more "standing room only" feeling, when was the proudest boast Boston ever made.

Nothing to do but sit down and read the Herald or Record or Advertiser or Globe or Transcript or Post or Telegram or Traveler or Journal or Evening American or Christian Science Monitor or Commercial or Financial News or Boston Letter or Shoe and Leather Reporter or Commercial Bulletin or Boston Common or Public Garden or Back Bay Fens or Charles River Basin or Franklin Park or Arnold Arboretum or Harvard Bridge or Longfellow Bridge or Cambridge Common or Cambridge Cemetery or Mount Auburn Cemetery or Cambridge Public Library or Boston Public Library or Boston Symphony Orchestra or Boston Opera House or Boston Museum of Fine Arts or Boston Museum of Natural History or Boston Museum of Science or Boston Museum of Anything Else or Boston Museum of Nothing at All.

Its service troubles are over. Trolley cars are running either and you can get to work.

Who said the Elevated was a bad little boy?

Now, then, everybody answer—

Is the Elevated a bad boy?

Is the Elevated a bad boy?

Is the Elevated a bad boy?

Starting chorus—

TENANTS TREAD VERY SOFTLY IN DORCHESTER

Dread the Landlord's Step on Rent Day: Some Big Families Moving Away

The most important person in Dorchester this week is the landlord. Tenants tremble when they hear his step on your door, as fear that the rent is going up again or else he is going to become irritable over some minor matter.

On Thursday and Friday agents called on many tenants and there are indications of the same kind in the cedar Grove, Ashmont and Mattapan sections.

Many of the larger families of the district are moving back to the city where they came in Dorchester to give their children a playing space and plenty of air and sunshine.

Houses in the Fields Corner section that recently were considered good rents before the war have been advanced $3 to $7.

The single and two family homes in the district because of its convenience to Squantum, the Quincy shipyards, that the landlord is independent. In some cases people have had to leave their homes because the workers in that plant offered more rent.

GIRL SWIMMERS EAGER TO MATCH PROWESS

Three swimmers who are expected to show to advantage in the American's annual swimming race, starting at the Charles River Basin. Top to bottom, Rose Feney, thirteen-year-old star, her sister, Marion Tonley, and Esther Miron of Worcester, winner of the race last year.

Keen rivalry exists among the girls of the various swimming clubs at the beaches in and about Boston, and they are taking long practice swims to be in condition for the annual race to be conducted by the Boston American, in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 23. Since the fair contestants entered the race will determine the question of who is the girl champion swimmer of New England, entries are beginning to pour into the Swimming Editor.

EXPERTS INTERESTED.

Swimming experts in all parts of the country will be keenly interested in the outcome of this race. It is safe to predict that the 5 valuable and handsome prizes will smash previous records because of the manner in which they are being sought after.

Miss Esther Miron, of Webster, winner of last year's race, completed the distance, one and one-half miles and back, in fifty-six minutes and twenty-five seconds. SOME NEW ENTRIES.

"The necessary physical fitness and staying power are acquired, not only by steady swimming practice, but by the strictest care of the health," says a well-known swimmer.

"Begin with a short distance swim and gradually increase it to one mile," she adds. "When you can do a mile easily, do it until you're sorry record of your time. Then try to lower the record by doing the distance repeatedly."

Some entries are:

ELIZABETH FINE, fourteen, No. 108 Morris street, East Boston.

EVELYN SCOTT, twenty-six, 87 1-2 West Brookline street, Boston.

MARJORIE McKENZIE, twenty-one, No. 1230 E street, South Boston.

DISAGREES WITH 'BUGS' BAER ON ARMY 'CHOW'

Even if Arthur Didn't Like It, Others Did, Says Major Shaw

Army "chow," as a regular diet was extolled today in a statement by Major F. P. Shaw, in charge of the Army Recruiting Office, who takes exceptions to the statements of Hugo Bezdek in the sport page of the Boston American over Shaw's statement, as follows:

Editor Boston American:

"You published yesterday's paper in the Sports Section an article on army chow by Bugs Baer. As it is an exceedingly clever and witty knock on the rule of strange army food to the public, and as Bugs will could not be amused by it would be as devoid of humor as a set of teeth.

"But with the poet's flip scorn of the exact facts Mr. Baer goes. The army chow may solve the food problem, but we know of 4,000,000 birds who have had experience of it, and he doesn't know 4,000,000 birds' who have even heard that there is such a thing as army chow. He doesn't know 1,000,000 or a quarter of that number. I venture to say that on a show down Bugs Baer's record for the army chow than he knows who do not like it.

IS PURE AND WHOLESOME.

"It is a well known fact that army chow, while not as fancy as that provided in many other places, is pure and wholesome, and the body building food that expert dietitians can devise. It was not until the well prepared, in the early days of the war, as could have been expected, because with the hundreds of thousands of the army there were not enough expert cooks to go around. In normal times every cook is a graduate of the army cooks' and bakers' school and thoroughly knows his business.

"When the first draft ended March 1 of this year to July 31 there have been 81,264 cooks' and bakers' schools in the army, 64 per cent of them recruits, does not look as though all of the 4,000,000 men who were in the army during the war had had enough of army chow. It may be perhaps that 4,000,000 men or even 3,000,000 men who have committed an entire enormous bulk army chow but it is doubtful even if they were not, it was not sufficiently objectionable for them to turn down other attractions that the civil army offers.

"Here at 7 Tremont Row (the Army Recruiting office), we do not hear of any dissatisfaction on this score from the recruiters who are in every day, to again talk army.

"In order to present a specific case of what army chow is, and not be accused of 'kidding' the public, this office telephoned the commanding officer of the 26th Infantry at Camp Devens stationed A. E. Parmenter, asking him to furnish the menu for one of his companies.

Mrs. John Craig of Beach Bluff gave a dinner at the Tedesco Country Club, thirty-four covers being laid. Dancing was enjoyed by the guests following the dinner.

Middlesex County Political Pot Is Boiling

With Senator Arthur W. Colburn of Dracut and former Alderman Smith J. Adams of Lowell, opposing County Commissioner Ernest B. Barlow of Lowell, who is seeking re-election, the political pot in Middlesex County has begun to boil with a vengeance. Not since 1916, when Barlow also had two opponents, has there been a contest of so much interest.

In 1916 Barlow fought it out with Attorney Charles H. McIntire of Lowell and Mr. Adams. The vote then was Adams, 7,502; Barlow, 15,766; McIntire, 7,430. Barlow polled 22,429 votes in the following State election, the largest vote ever given to a Middlesex County official.

There is a possibility that a fourth candidate, also from Lowell, may enter the contest. Senator Colburn is keeping the voters of Middlesex well supplied with reading matter. Many of the McIntire workers in 1916 have lined up with Barlow, but both Colburn and Adams claim they will have the McIntire vote at the primaries.

AUTO CRASH RESULTS IN $20,000 LAW SUITS

Two suits, each for $10,000, have been filed against Robert Sachs of Boston by Theresa Viano and Madeline Viano, a minor, both of Lexington.

They allege that on August 30, 1918, while riding in an automobile at Newburyport, they were severely injured when the defendant's car collided with the one they were in.

William Viano of Lexington sues Sachs for $1,000 for the damage done to his car in the collision.

THESPIANS QUIT THE BOARDS IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 8.—Theater New York theatres for the legitimate drama may be dark tonight unless the managers meet the demands of the Actors' Equity Association, which has precipitated a strike unique in the country's history.

The actors' association, boasting membership of 1,400, demands recognition from the Producing Managers' Association in the matter of contracts and some dealings between actors and the managers' association. It is declared that it will no longer recognize the actors' organization as representative of the actors, and refuses to deal with it.

The strike of the actors last night, which resulted in the closing of twelve of New York's most important playhouses, the disappointment of fifteen to twenty thousand persons and the loss of between thirty and fifty thousand dollars to the managements, was unexpected. The managers were unprepared for it, and only one of the theatres affected succeeded in staging its performance, substituting understudies.

In addition to the strike of Actors' Equity Association, another call has been sent out that may hold up all productions now being rehearsed. The strike mandate is to vaudeville, burlesque and screen houses, also, to stage hands, musicians and bill posters. It was reported today the actors have received the support of the Actors' Federation of Labor and that $60,000 has been pledged for carrying the strike.

Attorney Juggins was recently much in the public eye as senior counsel for Herman L. Barney.

Providence, Aug. 8—Mystery developed today in the case of Mary A. Preston, confidential clerk for Mowry & Allen, bankers and brokers of Greenwich, branch of the Union Trust Company and vice treasurer of Ward 15 Republican Club, who disappeared from her home yesterday morning. No trace of the woman was found, however, according to police. It is asserted that the Liberty Bonds she took had been left at the bank for safekeeping.

MRS. ENGLERT, 'PRETTIEST BRIDE OF LEGISLATURE'

Mrs. Martha S. Englert, wife of Representative John P. Englert of Ward 15, whose romance began in Comins Grammar School. Photo by Purdy.

Heroine of a romance which began in the fourth grade at Comins Grammar School, Mrs. Martha S. Englert, wife of Representative John P. Englert of Ward 15, also holds the title of the "Prettiest bride of the 1919 Massachusetts Legislature." Representative and Mrs. Englert were married January 15 by the Rev. Francis J. Murray, S. J., of Boston College, and now reside at 1 Bancroft street, Jamaica Plain.

They met first as children in the fourth grade of the grammar school, where it was a case of juvenile "love at first sight." They remained sweethearts and school companions until both graduated together from the class of the 1919 Boston Latin School, as the present Mrs. Englert was then, went to the Normal School on Hunt street, graduating in 1911, while the future representative went to the College of Liberal Arts, also graduating in 1915. They saw little of each other until they met two years ago at a social reunion.

Previous to her marriage, the bride-to-be was the organizer of a Knights of Columbus Girls' Club, and was for two terms secretary to the Democratic State Committee for the Senate from the Suffolk District. She is a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters, Court Council, Knights of Columbus, the Ancient A. A. Friendly Improvement Association and the Citizens' Vigilance Association. ITALY TO KEEP BIGGER PART OF FIUME

Rest Will Be Ceded to League of Nations for Ninety-nine Years

By Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch.

Rome, Aug. 8—An outline of a new solution of the Fiume problem has been handed to President Wilson for the third time, it is said.

Your correspondent is able to state authentically that the new plan gives Italy the permanent possession of the port of Fiume and of the part of Harrea with all railroads and facilities necessary for the transportation service to the hinterland.

A section of the port of Fiume is to remain a national Italian free port and to serve the immediate needs of the city. The districts ceded to the League of Nations are entirely separated from the city and the change which is to have direct administration over these districts, is to be under the guarantee of impartiality to the hinterland.

The plan would leave the greater part of the territory of Fiume under Italian sovereignty. It calls for the cession to Italy of the Zeglo to serve the Italian steamship line to Venice and Ancona.

The commission is also expected to raise the price of transfers from 1 to 2 cents.

MARCH FAVORS U. S. ARMY OF 510,000

General Says War Department Is Split Over Plans for Preparedness

Washington, Aug. 8—A military policy is necessary which will prevent another war finding the United States unprepared, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, told the military affairs committee of the Senate today.

General March appeared in favor of the War Department bill reorganizing the army and providing for a standing army of approximately 510,000.

WAR DEPARTMENT SPLIT.

Division in the War Department over compulsory military service and universal military training is quite pronounced, General March said. He declared he favored compulsory service, but that the War Department favored the provisions of the bill for three months' training for all males during their twentieth year.

Promotion in the army by selection instead of by seniority was strongly urged by General March.

The President should be given authority to determine the organization of the reorganized army, General March said, and Congress should not attempt to draw too definite restrictions upon the organization.

WOULD COST $900,000,000.

The army the War Department wants would cost approximately $900,000,000 a year, General March estimated.

The universal military training would cost $54,064,500 and the regular army of 510,000 would cost $798,660,-000.

Questioned by Senator Wadsworth, General March said that for two years before the war the total cost of the army had been only $260,000,-000 a year.

Fitchburg, Aug. 8—The petition of the firemen for the platoon system, filed at the office of the Secretary of State, contains 1,208 official signatures, checked by the registrars of voters. STOCKYARD HELP PREPARE FOR WALKOUT

32,000 Will Quit at Chicago if Guards Are Not Withdrawn

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 8—On the heels of the announcement that criminal prosecution of the "Big Five" packers will be undertaken, and coupled with sweeping investigations into the high cost of living, including meats, approximately 32,000 employes of Chicago's great stockyards are prepared to walk out today, adding to the seriousness of the situation faced by the packing companies.

The yard workers decided to walk out if the troops, police and deputies assigned to the yard to preserve order following the recent race riots are not removed at once.

The production of meat at the yard already has suffered from the railroad shopmen's strike.

K. OF C. VOTE FOR TRAINING COURSE FUND

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 8—At the final session of the Knights of Columbus peace convention $50,000 from the general fund of the order was appropriated to inaugurate the supplementary educational system of the organization. The system was devised and the subjects to be taught were selected at the K. of C. educational conference held at New York last week.

It was decided that the courses to be given should be vocational and occupational. It was also decided to form a central bureau to direct the work, and to issue certificates, with the full approval of local educational authorities, to those completing the K. of C. courses.

The subjects to be taught by the Knights are: Accounting, banking and finance, marketing, foreign trade, management, business law, commercial correspondence, private secretaryship, junior clerkship, filing and personal development, salesmanship. Industrial courses to be offered include airship construction, automobile, motion picture operating, electrical trades, jewelry making, plumbing, industrial drafting, employment management, printing, lithography, decorating, welding, ventilating, heating and civil service. Next to these will come the courses in citizenship, which will be founded upon the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States—their theory and practical application to modern life. The courses in citizenship will be modified to suit the needs of different localities.

The Knights have consulted with labor leaders in all matters affecting unionized trades and they have received promises of the most cordial cooperation.

The system will be immediately inaugurated, hundreds of councils having already signified through their representatives at the Knights of Columbus peace convention their eagerness to undertake the work.

James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, supreme grand knight of the Knights of Columbus, heads the committee in charge of the work. William J. Mcginley of New York, supreme secretary, and Joseph C. Pelletier of Boston, supreme advocate, are the other committee members.

Litigation over some of his other properties in this city is still pending.

BRAVE OFFICER CITED TWICE BY THE FRENCH

Word has been received from Washington that Lieutenant-Colonel Fred W. Sinclair, United States infantry, has been awarded a second citation from the French government, and with it a Croix de Guerre with palm, for his action during preparations for the Argonne Forest attack.

The citation pays the following tribute to the American officer:

"An officer of the finest type of courage, he proved his energy and coolness during the preparations for the Argonne Forest attack. In October, 1918, although seriously affected by a gas attack, he refused to be taken off the field."

TWO BAY STATE WOMEN DROWN IN SURF

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 8—Caught by a strong undertow while bathing in the surf two Massachusetts women were drowned.

They were Mrs. Meda B. Sweeney of Boston and Miss Bessie King of No. 87 Blue Street, Springfield.

The women came here about a week ago and were supposed to have become familiarized with the bathing conditions. But they ventured out too far from the beach and the undertow, which was running unusually strong, carried them beyond reach of the life guards.

When their plight was discovered by parties on shore Miss King appeared to be trying to go to the assistance of her companion, but owing to a strong current setting in towards Delaware Bay, which she was obliged to fight against, she became exhausted and sank before the lifeguards could reach her.

The bodies of both women were recovered and an inquest will be held by Coroner Thompson.

WOMEN TRAIL FUR THEFT SUSPECT

Investigation of Long Series of Larcenies Leads to Arrest of Charles Floyd

A ring of alleged fur thieves is said to have been discovered as the result of an investigation by two store detectives, Miss Mary Conlin and Miss Edith Thompson, into a series of daring thefts from downtown merchants, and a number of arrests are expected.

Acting upon information furnished by the women sleuths, the police arrested Charles W. Floyd of No. 111 Hillside street, Roxbury, charged with stealing fur coats valued at $2,470. According to the police, Floyd would walk into a store during a busy period, coolly select and remove as many coats as he could carry, hang them in his suitcase and walk out.

At the time of his arrest Floyd was carrying a bag which he said he had purchased two coats, one of squirrel skin, for $25, and the other of Alaska seal coat, valued at $1,200. According to the police, Floyd would enter a store ostensibly to have an old coat repaired, and while the salesman was attending to that matter he would transfer other coats from the racks to his bag.

Floyd's arrest took place after he had been trained from store to store for hours by two women detectives, whose aid the police enlisted after a long series of complaints had been made by merchants.

NUXATED IRON

For Red Blood, Strength and Endurance

THINK of the strong, healthy men and women you know—people who are prominent and who are doing things worth while and you will find that they usually possess remarkable force, vim and energy—the kind that simply burn over when the blood is filled with iron. Iron is red-blood food—it helps put strength and energy into the veins of men and roses into the cheeks of women. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system.

If people would only keep their blood filled with strength-giving iron by taking Nuxated Iron when they feel weak, run-down and nervous, they might readily build up their red-blood corpuscles and quickly become stronger and healthier in every way. Unlike the older inorganic products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

It Never Was It Is Not Now

And it never will be our policy to take advantage of a rising market to take advantage of our customers. Our selling prices are always based on cost to us, and are never boosted to keep pace with advancing wholesale quotations. Months ago we contracted for great quantities of merchandise at much less than today's prices, and we shall pass these goods on to our customers at the smallest profits we ever operated under—gladly doing our bit to relieve a trying situation, and taking our greatest profit from enhanced reputation and the good words and good will of our legion of patrons.

These Eight Kennedy Stores are in business to stay—not merely for today's gain. We realize that we have a duty to perform—a service to render to the public and to the men and women around us—and that mere money-making in these times must not be given even secondary consideration.

So for this coming season our prices will show little if any advance over those of last spring. And no matter how high clothing may go elsewhere, you can always step into a Kennedy Store, and supply your needs from the best the market affords at prices you will be pleased to pay.

We trust that clothing prices will not go as high as some predict, which would be a matter of grave concern. But whatever happens, our customers may rest assured that we shall continue, with redoubled efforts, to work for their interests, and just as long as there are any good clothes to be had, we shall sell them—as always—at nearer to the actual cost than any other store in New England.

Just now we are offering a large variety of exceedingly attractive suits—brand new styles in both single and double breasted models, beautifully tailored—at no increase over early season prices.

Russell Picked to Hurl Against Coveleskie in Final Game with Indians

Allen Russell, who came to the rescue of Herb Pennock when things looked their blackest in the closing round in the second game with the Indians at Manager Barry's selection in today's game at Fenway Park, Stanley Coveleskie, whose specialty is helping to keep the Cleveland club up there or thereabouts in the mad scramble for the American League pennant, was Speaker's choice.

SHAVER O'BRIEN SURE HE WILL BEAT SIEGAL

C. A. C. Selections

Shaver O'Brien to beat Nate Siegal.

Louis Leonard to beat Johnny Buckley.

Harry Silen to beat Sam Bell.

By JACK CONWAY.

Shaver O'Brien says that he will have such a decided margin on Nate Siegal in their ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C. tonight that his task of Referee Sheehan will be an easy one when that worthy renders his decision.

It is the second meeting between these youthful warriors. Their last mixup was declared a draw although most of the fans were of the opinion that O'Brien's aggressiveness entitled him to the decision. The South Boston lad was at close quarters about all the time and kept scoring with damaging left and right hand smashes.

Siegal admits he was not at his best for his last tussle with O'Brien. He says this was due to the fact that he had only done a little boxing between the time he returned from France and his conflict with the Peninsular favorite.

Following his contest with Siegal, the Revere man stopped Al Sears of East Boston.

There'll be another ten-round tussle between Johnny Buckley, South Boston lightweight, and Louis Leonard of the North End. Buckley has been an active worker in local rings during the past year and has a respectable number of victories to his credit.

Leonard was with the 26th Division in France and has been boxing since coming home. He gave Joe Curry of New Haven a stiff battle, although he lost the decision.

Joe Silen, a nifty a young welterweight as there is in New England, will oppose Sam Bell in another ten-round scrap. There'll also be a six-round preliminary.

Jack Dempsey is not worrying about meeting any of the scors of heavyweights who would gladly enter the ring with him to get the (loser) end of the purse. Before he walloped Willard in a fare-thee-well, Dempsey declared he would prove a regular champion and fight every couple of months or so. But that was before he grabbed the heavyweight crown.

At present Dempsey is busily engaged preparing himself for a fling around a theatrical circuit, for which effort he'll get enough money to buy a couple of John D's oil wells.

One can hardly blame Dempsey for the course he is following. In the first place there is not a whole lot of cass to the boxers who desire to meet him. Fred Fulton is about the only heavyweight in the world fit to ring the champion. And Dempsey has already flattened him once. Why set the pair up again and make the dear old fiddle the goat?

Skipper Meehan, Bill Brennan, Carl Morris and a lot of other dollar chasers would like to get a tussle with Dempsey. They know they wouldn't have a chance to win, but most boxers nowadays will let you hit them on the jaw with a baseball bat provided they get enough green backs to heal their wounds. 'Tis a merry world, mates.

His neck is so big that he wears six back collar buttons and five front ones. His head is the usual Indiana size, but not quite so bad as Swedenport, where they made trench hats out of thimbles. The Ape is strong for the Fourteen Points, which he thinks means something like two pieces of Wrigley's Seven-Point chewing gum. Tarzan never did find out what that Seventh Point was all about. When in shape for the ring he wears gray spats over pearl buttoned cloth-top shoes. Tarzan says he can knock Dempsey into a rebus.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

Frankie (Young) Britt has been signed to meet Ralph Brady of Syracuse in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Fenway A. A. next Monday night.

The New Bedford lightweight is apparently going on high once more in the way he disposed of Joe Tiplitz in their six round frolic in Philadelphia.

Johnny Kilbane, boss of the featherweights, will probably accept the Toledo offer he has received for an eight round bout with Benny Valger at Newark on Labor Day. Valger has been offered $5,000, and Joe Jacobs, his manager, has accepted it.

To win the featherweight championship Valger would have to be at 122 pounds. He would also have to score with a knock, as no decisions are permitted in Newark, which would prevent the third man in the ring from rendering a verdict even in the event of a foul.

We do not believe Valger would be able to make 122 pounds. Neither do we think he packs enough of a wallop to stop Kilbane.

Valger will receive plenty of opportunities to show how hard he can hit when he meets Charley Barker of the South End in a twelve round bout, at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Armory A. A. Barker has not a perfect defence and Valger should be able to land over some stinging blows. But if Packer hits him well, that's another story.

The complete card for Jack Leonard's show at Matthews a week from tonight, follows: K. O. Johnny Alecks, Philadelphia, vs. Joe Demarais, Providence, twelve rounds; Al Kaisene, Milford, vs. Young Mack, Medway, eight rounds; Kid Henry, Revere, vs. Frank Munroe, Everett, six rounds; Jack Hyde, Medway, vs. Young Dundee, Milford, six rounds. Fair.

RECORD FIELD TO START IN AUTO RACE

Uniontown, Pa., Aug.—A special meeting of the contest Board of the American Automobile Association was called to consider the application of the Uniontown Speedway Association to start eighteen cars in the Labor Day race of 225 miles.

Under the present Three A association, the Uniontown management is allowed to start not more that fifteen cars in any event on the mile an eighth track. The intense interest shown in the Auburn classic of Labor Day and inquiries for entranks indicate that the entry list for that race will be the largest in the history of the Uniontown track. Consequently quite a number of cars will have to be eliminated in the trials which will precede the big event. The management is eager to get as many cars possible in the famous drivers race here and application was made to increase the number of starters. The application to the support of the motor enthusiast and it is expected will be granted readily by the Three A. No opposition is anticipated by the drivers.

The Autumn classic here will be the second big racing event in America this season, being exceeded only by the 500-mile grind at Indianapolis on May 30.

This fact, coupled with the purse which aggregates $15,000 with $7,500 to the first man, will lure the greatest drivers in the game to Uniontown.

The track record for the mile is in the country. It requires a great deal of study and practice, however, before a driver can deliver the best he has in the big oval and the best there is. If his car is right he can pile up speed time and again by new drivers who has failed to get more than 80 miles an hour in their trials in sprints.

It is claimed the failure of Tom Orris and Cooper to equal their previous speed records was due to unfamiliarity with the busy track, while Ralph De Palma experienced the same trouble in his first appearance here and has failed to return to the speedway. While their entries have not been received for the Auburn event, it is impossible that these star drivers will be here on Labor Day.

Since the opening of the track there have been few serious accidents on it although there have been scores of spectacular spills.

KILBANE OFFERED $10,000 FOR GO WITH VALGER

New York, Aug. 7.—Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, has been offered $10,000 by the Newark Sports man's Club to box Benny Valger on Labor Day. Valger's guarantee is to be $5,000. Joe Jacobs presented yesterday for Valger, and it is quite certain that Kilbane will accept, as since no other club is likely to offer anything like that sum, and in Newark he will be asked to go only eight rounds without a referee's decision.

Under such conditions Kilbane would lose his valuable title only through a knockout. Not even a foul would debar him, as the referee would merely disqualification for a foul would entail giving a decision, and in a no-decision bout that course is not possible. Valger has been coming along pretty strongly. Kilbane refused to permit Valger to fight Johnny Ertle recently in Philadelphia.

How to Play Baseball

This is the sixty-sixth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to become a base runner. These articles will be a feature on the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

The steal of third differs largely from the steal of second. The throw is shorter, but the chances of success for the clever runner really are greater. Remember that the runner seldom steals a base on the catcher, but on the pitcher.

Stealing third illustrates better than anything else the necessity of learning the hook slide on both the right hand and left hips. In making second the outside of the bag—in front of the bag—the right hand hook slide is the right and each of the legs. Only two ways of sliding to third. The runner should come up fast with every pitched ball and watch carefully the actions of the shortstop and second baseman. Better even is to trust entirely to the coacher for instructions. Be certain to have signals with the third base coacher which will warn you the instant as to the move of the defensive second baseman and shortston.

Watch for signs of carelessness on the part of the pitcher, especially when there is a runner behind you on first base. If the pitcher takes too long wind-up, start with his arm, the steal is easy.

Decide on which ball you intend to steal and leave the base at top speed. Many coachers, accustomed to watching runners dash halfway up the line and then retreat to second, hesitate an instant to see whether the runner will start back or not and that fraction of a second of hesitation gives the runner his chance.

No matter what you decide to do go through with it without hesitation. Remember that the more critical the stage of the game the greater your chances third are possible—so straight at the bag or to fall away behind it. The third baseman will place his position properly and the throw is made correctly he will make a tag on the line just inside the corner of the bag, while the right foot will be in front of the base, as he stretches on the line to meet the ball.

This necessitates the baseman touching back of the runner and gives the runner the maximum chance for getting being touched. If you think you have the throw beaten slide directly at the bag, with your left foot between the legs of the fielder to avoid being touched. If you think the ball will beat you to the base or arrive about the same time, throw your body to the right back of the bag and bring the left foot to the base as you slide behind it. The baseman then has to touch your foot while your part of your leg to make the play at all. Be certain not to overslide, as the baseman has every opportunity, in touching your foot, to add a slight push which will carry you beyond the bag and result in an out.

The start on second, of course, is everything in stealing of making a successful steal of third are. In such crises the pitcher is intent upon working with the batter and is less likely to be watchful of base runners.

BUTLER IS KEPT BUSY FIXING BIKE CARDS

Nat Butler, who arranges everything at the Revere cycle track, except the weather, has more races scheduled than there are days in the week as a result of the rainy race nights and plans to double up his cards until the season is brought to a close.

One meeting will be held this week, and three next week, Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Here is the layout for the bike fans for tomorrow night and Monday night, as given out over the phone by the veteran manager:

Saturday night, unless it rains, we will start with the motor paced race, unless it rains, then Wiley, Madonna and Carey following the machines, unless it rains.

We will also run off—unless it rains—semi-finals and finals in the New England professional sprint championships, with the regular card of amateur and professional events—unless it rains.

On Monday night—unless it rains—the American motor paced championships, over the 20 mile course, with Wiley, Carey, Lawrence and Chapman, with Madonna and Grey following the machines, unless it rains.

When asked what would happen or when the races would be held in case it rained tomorrow night or Monday night or both nights, there was just a strange noise at the other end of the wire but no answer.

Navy Yard Team Seeks Game

The Navy Yard M. A. A. nine is without a game for Saturday and would like to hear from any strong semi-professional organization in the State.

A New-Born Star in Its Second Year

AT 10 o'clock p. m. the "nova," that amazed the astronomical world by its sudden appearance in the constellation Aquila, in June, 1918, outshining for a few nights every other star, is on the meridian, but now so faint that only an astronomer can recognize it. Yet it remains a great marvel, for it seems to have turned into something resembling a planetary nebula.

PRICES DECLINE IN SECOND HOUR

Traders Nervous Over Labor Unrest and Government Suit Plans

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were lower in New York at noon, some losing two to one as compared with opening. The recession movement began at the end of the first hour and grew in force in the second. The market was very active, first hour transactions totaling more than 1,000,000 shares. The early call rate was 6 per cent.

Among issues to recede the most during the morning were American International, Atlantic Gulf, Marine common and preferred, American Tobacco, Baldwin, Canadian Pacific, Republic Iron & Steel, Pacific Mail, Wilson & Co. Bonding, Southern Pacific, Tobacco Products, Corn Products, Mexican Petroleum, International Paper and Lorillard. They had declined from two to three points. Losses from Products and American Tobacco were the weakest.

Steel & Iron selling as much at 100% at noon, after selling as high as 102 during the morning. Crucible was weak on sales at 128, with Bethlehem B off 3 at 82½. Baldwin was down 4 at 82½.

U. S. Rubber was erratic during the forenoon, ranging from 120½ to 124½, closing at the latter figure, up 2 from yesterday's closing price at 122. Corn Products dropped 4½ to 72½ in the second hour, after showing a point gain earlier in the session.

RALLY AT THE OPENING.

A reversal of the price movement set in early in the morning, the market started with a rally in which issues which were weakest at yesterday's close advanced the most. There was urgent demand for U. S. Steel, Crucible, Baldwin, Bethlehem B, Kelly-Springfield, Studebaker, Tobacco Products, U. S. Rubber and Royal Dutch and a number of other issues. A few recalled. This was attributed to the cessation of short selling orders. The shift in sentiment was credited to the warning from the Chief Executive that labor must abide by the order from a union chief that the men return to work. The threat to withhold support from any union that suspended somewhat overnight, the price trend was upward during the first hour, affirmative sentiment failed to hold all gains. The upward movement was not general, however, as rails, which had a rather weak start, there was profit taking at the end of the first hour.

WHAT CAUSED THE BREAK.

The price break late in the previous session was said by veteran operators to be the most severe in many years. There were many causes assigned for the weakness, but the shipowners strike reports that railroads would embrace higher rates to meet the demands of labor and that packers would be prosecuted on indictments for crime, lack of a competition and the "high cost of living" experts. Rumors persisted in circulation all night on the Stock Exchange floor.

Wall Street seems to be more alarmed over the spreading of well organized labor than over any development in years. Investments may appreciate in value, but speculation this morning. It was believed that what the President had to say during next Monday evening will refine the situation which is a heavy crude, for use by gas companies.

The oil will be shipped in chartered and steamer tank cars. It is estimated that Atlantic Gulf output next year will be between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 barrels.

Banking Capital Increases

National bank capital grew more in the United States during each month for a number of years. Increases are chiefly by fifty-dollar banks increasing $12,500 each, while the capital of twenty-one banks each increased $100,000, making a total increase of $14,443,000.

Why Call Rate is Lower

Reduction of the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 6 per cent to 5 per cent, effective August 7, is the result of the substantial reduction in the volume of rediscounts of the bank during the last week. The reduction in the rediscount rate was made in order to bring the rate into line with the open market rate for bankers' acceptances.

SWIFT ISSUES LOWER IN BOSTON

At the opening the Boston market failed to show the strength manifested in New York at the outset, parking house issues selling on the local exchange at sales. Prices in general ruled lower but all the morning.

Among market issues were Swift & Co., Libby, Swift International, United Fruit, Atlantic Gulf, Boston Elevated, Calumet & Hecla, Isle Royale, Lake Copper, American U. S. Smelting, Massachusetts Gas and Old Dominion. They showed little change from the previous close or another during the forenoon. Copper issues were generally lower, but the supported issues of this class were the steadiest. A few issues advanced, including Utah Metals, Davis Daly, Superior and Boston and Mayflower-Old Colony.

Punta Alegre Sugar advanced a point during the morning, and United Shoe Machinery, the unlisted Rood and Vandervoort, Holyoke, Gray & Davis and Boston & Maine.

Cash in Banks and Outside

Cotton Market Opened Steady

New York, Aug. 8.—The cotton market opened steady, at a net loss of 25 points to a gain of 5 points. Weak cables were followed by reports that railroad shopmen were preparing to walk, and by active buying by Wall Street and Liverpool bears and shorts and by Boston and Mayflower-old Colony interests. At the end of 40 minutes the list was unsettled and about 5 points under last night's close, with room traders selling freely.

Closing prices: October 34.60; December 31.00; March, 31.05; May, 31.15.

Why Should the State Not Distribute Our Fish?

Years of agitation against the profiteering in food, countless investigations and committee reports, threats of prosecution, newspaper fulminations, indictments, trials and convictions, still leave us with the food profiteer and with an outrageous cost of living.

Does this utter failure of protest and of negative action indicate that we must submit to our fate and accept what the profiteer gives us at the profiteer's prices? No. It does not, for we have only talked and never acted. We have relied only upon negative action, upon locking the barn door after the horse is stolen, upon crying over spilled milk, upon attempting to turn the mill by waters that have passed, upon regulation, upon some negative scheme of changing human nature. We have never undertaken to put the temptation away from men. We have never undertaken to substitute constructive action for negative criticism and regulation. Since we have failed to make the private individual charge us only a reasonable profit for supplying us with food, we have never attempted to supply ourselves.

Indeed, the Federal Trade Commission, after investigating the Beef Trust, has recommended to the National Government a plan for partial supply of beef and its by-products by the government, but no ACTION has been taken on the suggestion.

In Massachusetts we have a chance—an unusual chance—to try the experiment of government supply of an important item of food—fish.

An absolutely unlimited supply of food fish is at our front door. Free to all, merely for the gathering up. Health giving, brain making, food especially nutritious as well as delicious during the Spring and Summer seasons. Nature in her most bountiful manner has provided this source of food supply for the inhabitants of the rocky, sterile New England soil which reluctantly yields to the farmer but small returns for most arduous labors. It is nature's distribution of wealth. We are bound to avail ourselves of what is so freely bestowed. Yet in the distribution of this seafood we are challenged at the threshold of our port by a private monopoly which manacles the delivery of every pound of fish and to whose coffers must first be paid tribute by every consumer before he begins to bargain for the price of the fish.

The profits of one fish corporation may be described only as appalling. And the exasperating feature of the business is that these men demand their tribute collections OVER A PIER OWNED BY THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS! The fishermen's strike, now on in this port, may be traced directly to the great fish corporation which controls the pier and, therefore, controls virtually all the fish deliveries of Boston harbor.

Knowing of the vast profits brazenly gathered by the fish trust and knowing the prices received for their catch, the fishermen, displaying a common trait of human nature, determined to demand merely what to them appears just, a share of the wealth taken from the people by the profiteers. And so the suffering spreads. The fishermen are on strike and losing their earnings. The fish trust, with huge stores of fish purchased at low prices before the strike, packed in their icehouses, on the State-owned pier, raise the price of fish and refuse to meet the demands of the striking fishermen. When the people rebel at the high price of fish the storekeeper mournfully shakes his head and says "the strikers raise the price of everything."

THERE IS AT HAND AN IMMEDIATE SOLUTION OF THIS VEXATION. The State owns the fish pier. The buildings thereon are owned by the Fish Corporation paying a comparatively small rental for an extremely valuable privilege. The State can and should take over at once the Fish Pier, buildings and all, and operate the business for the benefit of all the inhabitants of Massachusetts. There is direct connection by railroad between every city in Massachusetts and the State Fish Pier. There is a gigantic ice-making plant there which may be used to make all the ice needed in Massachusetts.

The nucleus of a great market terminal is there on the Fish Pier with its cold storage plant for vegetables, eggs, fruit, etc., which can be maintained by the State as a successful business transaction. This is public ownership in its most approved form and principle. Who can object to this? Certainly no taxpayer and surely no consumer of fish. The amounts of money taken out of the pockets of the people to line the golden coffers of the fish trust would pay for the operation of the pier for many years and leave a handsome profit to the State. We believe that the solution in great part of the food problem is to be found in State ownership and operation of the Fish Pier.

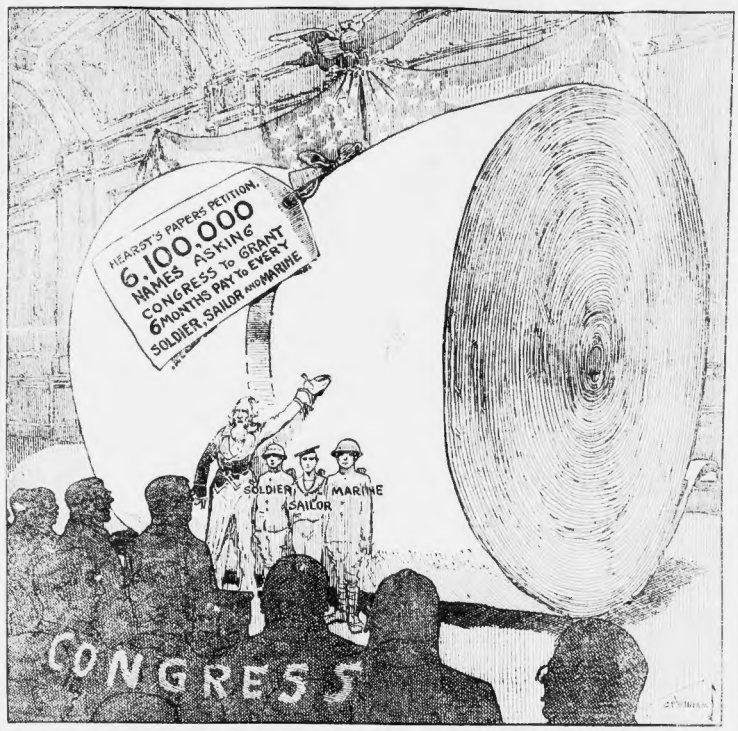
The Endorsement of Six Months' Pay for Heroes



Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

IN A market basket.
ON THE arm of a man.
IN A Southern town.
WERE THREE little pups.
AND AN actor man.
WHO WAS in the town.
FOR A couple of days.
AND MAYBE was lonesome.
OR MAYBE liked dogs.
STOPPED TO pet the pups
AND ONE of them.
MADE AN awful hit.
BY CHEWING his thumb.
AND CHEWING his chin.
WHEN HE picked him up.
AND CHEWING his ear.
AND THE actor man.
INQUIRED THE price.
AND WHAT they would be.
WHEN THEY all grew up.
AND HE bought the pup.
AND BECAUSE he was playing.
WITH OTIS Skinner.
HE NAMED him Tony.
FOR 'ANTONIO."
AND SO it happened
THAT THE pup came North.
IN A little dog box.
AND WAS raised in a flat.
AND STAYED very small.
AND CAME to be.
JUST A mongrel dog.
AND SUMMER came.
AND HIS master moved
AND THEY live near me.
AND THEY have a car.
AND WHEREVER they go.
YOU'LL ALWAYS find.
THAT TONY'S right there.
BY THE driver's seat.
AND SINCE the days.
THAT HE first went out.
THIS AUTO car.
IS THE only thing.
THAT TONY knows.
IN THE traveling line
OR RATHER it was.
TILL A week ago.
AND THEN one day.
THE MASTER went out.
AND BOUGHT him a horse.
WITH A buggy thrown in.
AND DROVE it home.
AND AFTER dinner.
ON THAT same day.
HE HITCHED up the horse
AND TOOK Tony in.
AND TONY sat.
ON THE buggy floor.
WITH HIS head stuck out.
ROUND THE dashboard thing.
AND HE glued his eyes
TO THE horse's legs.
AND FOR all of a week.
HE'S BEEN out every day.
AND ALL of the time.
HIS EYES never leave
THOSE FOUR strange things.
THAT GO down to the ground.
AND THAT pound on the road.
AS THEY go along.
AND WE'VE figured it out.
THAT HE'S trying to learn.
WHAT THE mischief it is.
MAKES THE darn thing go.

I THANK you.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Burnett On Milk

Editor Boston American:

In several of the papers recently has appeared a letter by Mr. Barnard Morrison, with comments on a controversy between one of the large milk dealers and Mr. Pattee of the Milk Producers' Association. The controversy I have nothing to do with, as that is a matter for settlement between the two parties concerned.

As to Mr. Morrison's statements, they show such an utter lack of knowledge of the subject on which he writes, besides making some very vindictive insinuations reflecting upon the honesty of the milk dealers and milk producers in general, that I do not feel these statements should be allowed to pass without an answer, in order that the public at large may have a fairer representation of this case and one which is given from actual knowledge of the working conditions of the milk business.

The people and groups of people interested in this campaign are the United States government, the State Board of Health, Dr. Woodward of the city Board of Health, the Chamber of Commerce, Professor James of Amherst College, the Civic Federation, the Boston Committee on Public Safety and many others of equal note, and I do not think that any fair-minded person will question the integrity of purpose of any of these people, even if they find it necessary, through mistaken judgment, to question the purpose of the dealer and the producer in the matter.

To Save Industry

I wish to state here that the cooperation of the government and of the State Boards of Health has been due also to their interest to save the dairying industry of this country. Speaking for my own part, New England, and especially for Massachusetts, the farmers for years have been getting so little for their product that it has been a struggle for them to stay in the business at all.

The whole situation in the milk business is one of misunderstanding. First between the producer and the dealer and then on the public's part, of the farmer and the dealer, too.

Having established the fact that the farmer is entitled to nine cents a quart under present conditions, then the question is asked, and very properly, where does the other 6½ or 7 cents go that the consumer has to pay. This is a very simple question to answer and easy to understand if a consumer is honestly looking for information and not for a chance merely to criticise. The nine cents paid the farmer is merely the initial cost, so far as the dealer goes.

Cost to Dealer

After that he has the cooling, the pasteurization, the bottling and capping, bottles cost 2 cents each and 20 per cent are lost or retained by the householder, making the cost of bottles alone one cent a quart), the icing (which expense this year is enormous), and the delivery. Outside of the delivery the other items, with depreciation of buildings, of equipment, of loss on bad debts, which is about one per cent, of all sales, often cost will eat up at least 2 cents per quart. In regard to the delivery, the milk drivers at present receive $20.00 a week and will receive another increase next month. It costs $10.00 a week to board one horse for each route (and there have to be spare horses), and there are incidentals such as veterinary, repairs to wagons, etc., which make at least $5.00 more a week on each route. An average wagon does not carry over 250 units per day (and 300 carry less). This, if divided into the total cost of running wagon, will give a 3 cent charge for delivery expenses alone. Is there any need to ask where the difference between the price paid the farmer and the price charged the consumer goes? Transportation costs have about tripled and there is not an item in the milk business where the costs of labor have not gone up from 50 to 100 per cent. The milk dealer, instead of being a "profiteer," as is charged by some of the public, is not making a legitimate profit on his investment.

I do not think there is a milk dealer in Boston who is not willing and who will not gladly welcome an investigation of the milk conditions of our city by any fair-minded committee that is appointed to help in the reduction of the excessive costs of living.

EXPLAINING REAL BASIS OF GIRLISH CHARM

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

I WENT to see a motion picture which had another title, but might very well have been called "The Plain Girl vs. The Pretty One."

Before the pictures were shown a brief sermon was flashed on the screen to the effect that men are always lured by girls who "paint and powder and wear suggestive clothes," and the bold assertion was made that not one girl in ten ever has more than one chance to marry.

Screen dramatism and morality and manners and ethics are in a class by themselves. They are beyond me, but I am grateful to them, they tickle my sense of humor so much that they have enlivened many an otherwise dull picture for me.

In this ethiopian the idea presented to the mind was of a large standing army of plain girls, each patiently waiting for some man to come along and ask her to share his lot, while an equally large army of pretty girls had nothing to do but pick the plums from the matrimonial tree.

Plain Girls Marry Well

But do facts bear out this assumption? I submitted before my mind's eye the hosts of the married and the hosts of the unmarried of about the same ages, and I was forced to the conclusion that if the pairs were to be assorted for beauty it would have to go to the unmarried.

It would almost seem as if by some law of compensation the plain sisters marry easily and well, while the beautiful and charming ones have a little way of either going through the woods and picking up a crooked stick at the last, or else they don't pick up any stick at all. Some of the ugliest and stupidest women any of us know are married; some of the smartest and most winning remain single.

What is the greatest factor in love and marriage, anyway? It is comprised in one long word—propinquity. The result depends entirely on how much a young man and a young woman are thrown together. Theodosia knew what she was talking about when he said that given fair opportunities any woman could marry any man she chose.

Personality Real Charm

As for the assertion that only one girl in ten receives more than one offer of marriage, and that she must exact the hapless role of little Polly Waters "sitting in the dark weeping and sighing for a young man" just sitting there no matter how hot the sun is, until he comes along and says in lordly fashion, "Here, Sally, rise, wipe your tears off with your frock"—I don't believe a word of it. Nature has not left her creatures so defenseless. Any girl who cares about having more than one offer of marriage gets them, entirely regardless of whether she is pretty or plain.

I was speaking to a man only a few days ago of a girl we had both known. She had not a trace of beauty, and yet had so many suitors that she couldn't count them. She was an island, completely surrounded by men, I said.

She was so attractive, and yet not in the least pretty."

"Exactly," he replied. "She stands out in my memory as no other girl has ever done. I couldn't have told you even at the time what she wore; but she was so daintv, and she had such a lot of 'pep' and was so entertaining and sympathetic that you couldn't help adoring her. Even when she turned you down you wanted to keep on being friends with her."

Attraction is a matter of personality, and personality is something that transcends appearance.

Could the Navy Fish?
A Foolish Trust

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Nobody, it seems, loves the packers. Chaos and old night are settling down upon them, perhaps. They will be prosecuted by the government, criminally prosecuted, maybe. But a tiny streak of light shines in the darkness. The lawyer selected to prosecute these gentlemen was engaged in a famous attack on the New York street car trust. Let the packers read back about the things that did not happen to the street car men, on that occasion, and cheer up.

Never was the street car monopoly more prosperous or safe, than after the "relentless" investigation by the firm that is now going to investigate the packers. In fact, after that investigation the street car people rapidly extracted two hundred and fifty million more from New York city's pocketbook, and just now the same trust is busy raising fares and refusing to recognize unions, in the good old way.

The packers will find comfort also in studying the history of the Standard Oil since the benevolent organization was prosecuted and investigated, one of its little branches, the Atlantic Refining Company, with stock selling at fourteen hundred dollars a share, has just announced an issue of forty-five million dollars more common stock and twenty million dollars more preferred stock—on all of which the good public will pay dividends. Another little branch out in California pays the Standard Oil people sixty per cent. a year or more. To be prosecuted by the United States does not necessarily mean interference with trust prosperity.

The real news of this day is not pleasant reading for those that have read the history of other days. The representative of more than four million organized workmen publicly tells a Congressional committee that the problem of high prices may have to be solved in the firing squad, and that within a few months this country may have to face the most serious crisis in all history. That is not pleasant reading, especially for those aware that organized money in America is still unenlightened and stupidly defiant.

While everybody from the President down talks about massing food cheaper, the Board of Trade report reads, "Corn and pork shoot skyward." There was wildness in open on the part of food gamblers and prices have jumped up. One question would seem to be, how long is the price of food to be regulated by gambling operations?

In England they threaten not only to punish profiteers, but to take from them and use for public purposes the billions in illegitimate profit already accumulated. That would be rather too strong medicine for this country, where the dollar is respectable. In England, where they have a government largely organized workingmen temporarily directed by Lloyd George, they have learned to do things thoroughly.

An important announcement was made before the Congressional Committee on Mr. Mordecai, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, to the effect that the work men of the United States Steel Company, the greatest industrial organization in the world, would soon be organized.

Mr. Morrison declared that the steel trust does not permit its employees to organize, and does not permit them to hold public meetings in the State of Pennsylvania. The latter statement seems incredible, if true. The result is undoubtedly the holding of many meetings in secret, and other things that great industrial organizations should not promote.

Time has gone when financiers that closely unite with their fellows to regulate prices and insure profits can forbid their workmen to do the same.

Robert Jackson, in his fishing schooner Liberty, arrived in New Bedford, on Wednesday, with swordfish weighing twenty thousand pounds. At twenty-six cents a pound they brought $5,200—one thousand dollars for each of the five men on board the Liberty.

The ocean is filled with such swordfish and other fish that might be transferred to the interiors of American citizens. Would it be unreasonable, by way of solving the food problem, for the government to use some of its boats to haul up these fish with nets and sell them at reasonable prices to the public? Or would that be socialism thinly disguised?

Dozens of craft in the navy are constantly rushing around, burning up coal and burning up money, in official salutes. Would it do any harm to let them drag fishing nets behind them? They are not in any hurry, now that the war is over. Mr. Daniels is enough of a Democrat to try it.
